Mitcheldean is a small town situated about 12 kms from the western end of the M50, at the junction of the A4136 Huntley to Monmouth road where it joins the B4224.

From Ross on Wye/ western end of the M50:

Take the A40 towards Gloucester.

Turn right at Lea on to the B4224 (note that this turning is on a bend in the road, and approach with caution) and follow this road all the way to Mitcheldean.

As you arrive in the town at a T-junction facing the Xerox site, turn right, following the road into the town centre. Look out for the sign to the MEWS, which is on the left hand side after the first pub (the White Horse) and before the library.

From Gloucester:

From South Wales:

From Monmouth (reached by A449 from Newport and the M4), take the A4136 towards the Forest of Dean: to reach this you have to cross the A40 and the river. If you are arriving on the A449 this involves doubling back at the second roundabout after emerging from the tunnel, as there is no right turn for the bridge across the river.

Stay on the A4136 past signs for Coleford and Cinderford, and you will come into Mitcheldean immediately after descending a steep hill (Plump Hill, at the top of which is the turning for the Wilderness Centre).

At the mini-roundabout turn left into town. . Go past the post office on the left and Lloyds back on the right. Look out for the sign to the MEWS, which is on the right hand side immediately after the library.

Once you arrive:

Drive in through the MEW's gates, and park in any designated parking area labelled 'MEW's' or with no label at all. We are in Building 6 opposite the entrance gates. Go up the iron staircase to the first floor and down the corridor in front of you. We are on the left.
